

Abstract

Method for producing a spindle nut (2), in particular of a ball screw, which is provided on its circumference with at least one through-opening (7) for receiving a deflecting piece (8), a hole punch (19) which is arranged within the spindle nut (2) punching out the through-opening (7) from radially inward to radially outward through the casing of the spindle nut (2).

Figure 4